"Wisdom," says Josh Billings, "don't know more than that is true, but in knowing less that is false."

Where George the Third made his great mistake was in not telling the Colonists that it was their duty as good subjects to obey the Stamp Tax law—if they had we would have a Governor General today instead of a President.

Famous Spanish torero kills six bulls and is presented by the wildly cheering multitude with seven ears and two tails from the slain animals, which at the present market price of $100 a steaks must be regarded as dandied poor pay.

Some Washington folks seem to think that the way to obtain farm relief is to sell the old homesteads for a municipal airport.

We expect any day now that England will cordially reply to Uncle Sam's disarmament overture with a frank expression of her willingness to scrap a blueprint for every battleship we sink.

Kicking the bonus out of the farm relief bill is going to leave the farmer in the position of the colored brother who went to sleep in front of the fire while his "possum was cooking for dinner. A friend dropped in, ate the possum, greased the slumbering Sambu's mouth, and edged out. "I must have done it," said Sam, when he woke up and smacked his lips, "but it was the most unsatisfactory possum I ever ate."

President Hoover makes a plan for law enforcement everywhere as the skipper of a ship 100 miles at sea reports that he was fired upon by a Coast Guard cutter. A good place to begin this desirable reform is within the Government itself.

The elements in the Mississippi valley listen to old Lear's passionate plea, and tornados, hail, rain and flood do their devastating work, with 32 dead left in their wake. As the Fool replied to the King, "Court-holy-water in a dry house is better than this rain-water out o' door."

Why don't the Georgetown citizens who have started out on the trail of that mysterious odor call in the Senatorial Smelling Committee as a board of experts?

Speaking of mysteries, scientists penetrate the infinite and explain the Northern Lights—they're an Eskimo's candle.

Judge Gordon hurls slot machines into the outer darkness as the side-partners of Sin, and it is understood that bridge prizes are trembling in their boots.

Looks as though the experts of the Senate Agricultural Committee would have to fall back on flat money. Are there no "green-backers" left in Congress?

We fear that the sun-burned farmers of this country will be bitterly denouncing the Administration down on the beach—at Miami next winter.

Still, after all, cheer up—there isn't as much crime in the country as there would be if there was a law making the eating of strawberries and cream a felony.

3 OTHERS IN AUTO INJURED

Mrs. Frank Murphy, wife of Representative Murphy, of the Eighteenth Ohio District, was killed instantly yesterday when the automobile in which she was riding skidded and overturned near Ocala, Fla., according to information received here.

Representative Murphy was apprised of the accident during the afternoon and left immediately for Florida.

Mrs. Murphy was riding with her mother, Mrs. Mary Marcus, Mrs. Cora Young, of Syracuse, N. Y.; Julius M. Love, of Port Chester, N. Y., and E. W. Hockensburg, of St. Petersburg, Fla., at the time of the accident. Associated Press dispatches revealed. They were en route to Silver Springs, a resort near Ocala.

Mrs. Murphy's mother, Mrs. Young, Love and Hockensburg were injured and were treated at the hospital at Ocala, but their hurts are not serious, the dispatches stated.

Hockensburg was at the wheel and police officials said indications were that the automobile was traveling at high speed.

Friends of the Representative stated last night that Mrs. Murphy had been an invalid ever since he has been in Congress and has spent little time in Washington. According to these friends, Mrs. Murphy had spent every winter in Florida in company with her mother, usually residing at St. Petersburg. During the spring it was customary for her to come to Washington for a week or two after which she and her husband would go to their home at Steubenville, Ohio.

"You will," his order continued, "arrest any persons found with a machine on their premises after that time. This applies to machines of the gift type, that is, one which gives hints or candy and also slugs or checks but not to the ordinary type of vending machine."

The police are to broaden the scope of their drive to include other gambling purposes, Justice Gordon, in equity branch of the District Supreme Court, ruled yesterday and dismissed a petition for an injunction to restrain officials from seizing such machines.

Arrests Ordered.

Pratt told his commanders to notify all persons having machines in their possession to get rid of them before noon today.

Injunction Refused.

Slot machines are devices for gambling purposes, Justice Gordon, in equity branch of the District Supreme Court, ruled yesterday and dismissed a petition for an injunction to restrain officials from seizing such machines.

The decision started anew a drive, which was temporarily halted by filing of the injunction petition, to rid the Capital of the machines. Immediately following the court's decision, United States Attorney Leo A. Rover notified Maj. Henry G. Pratt, superintendent of police, to give machine operators a week to get rid of the machines. Rover asked that the warning be given by policemen.

David J. White, of Baltimore, Md., owner of numerous slot machines installed in local stores, brought the injunction suit against Rover and Edith Leathay, retired police chief, last month. A few days before White instituted the suit, Hesse, cooperating with the district attorney's office, sent out orders to all policemen to arrest all persons operating slot machines and to seize the devices.

America is also ready and willing to discuss with Great Britain methods whereby reductions may be made effective in conformity with particular British and American needs. But America is not willing to retreat an inch from the position this Government took at the last Geneva tripartite naval conference, which went on the rocks because Great Britain and the United States could not agree.

Mrs. Murphy suffered a stroke of paralysis on the day her husband was sworn in as Representative at the convening of the Sixty-sixth Congress.

Mrs. Murphy was the mother of three children but all are dead. Two girls died in infancy, while a son, Franklin Murphy, died several years ago under mysterious circumstances at Culver Military Academy. His death was said to have been attributed to injuries suffered while making high dives.

HOOVER MAY DEFEAT IDEA

By CARLISLE BARGERON.

President Hoover's positive stand against the debture plan has not ended the farm fight in Congress, but it is believed to have marked the plan's ultimate defeat.

Rich farm lands for 100 miles along the river's edge to a distance of 10 miles on either side were in danger as observers predicted the stage in 1851.

It was expected the crest of the flood would be reached some time during the night, for the river was stationary at Kookuk, Iowa, all day.

Once more Illinois National Guardsmen patrolled the levees protecting the prosperous truck farms of the South Quincy district. It was believed they would be able to avoid a break. Others watched the new Lima Lake district to the north.

Two Democrats—Randsell of Louisville, and Kendrick of Wyoming—deserted party ranks yesterday in committee, and voted with four Republicans, McNary of Oregon, Capper of Kansas, Gould of Maine, and Thomas of Idaho, against the debture plan.

The water, which ran through the streets of Canton, Mo., was found to have come over the embankment of the Burlington Railroad. A hundred and fifty families deserted their homes for higher ground.

Thomas, Mo., isolated.

Forests forced special attention from those in charge of the district.

The Mississippi River at St. Louis was reported headed for a stage of 31.5 feet, or 18 inches over the flood level, some time about Friday. This, however, it was said, merely would cover the levee and slow up railroad switching and traffic.

High Stages Are Forecast.

Forecasts for other stages were: Grafton, Ill., 23 feet, Thursday; flood stage, 18; Alton, Ill., 26 feet Friday; flood stage, 25; Chester, Ill., 30 feet Saturday; flood stage, 27; Peoria, Ill., 21 feet, Thursday; Havana, Ill., 19.2 Friday; Beardstown, Ill., 21 Saturday; Pearl, Ill., Friday.

WARNING IS SOUNDED OF AIRPORT SCANDAL

Underhill Is Aroused by Operations of Realtors on Tract at Chillum.

BIG PRICE "SPREAD" CITED

Aroused by the disclosure that real estate men had obtained options on a 500-acre tract at Chillum, Md., Representative Underhill (Republican), of Massachusetts, yesterday warned that there must be no "real estate scandal" in connection with Washington's proposed airport.

Underhill uttered the warning at what probably was the final hearing of the Congressional Airport Commission that is to frame legislation for a national air terminal here.

In earlier in the day Elwood Morey, a local attorney, appeared before the commission and explained that he represented the Sullivan Brothers, of 815 Fifteenth street northwest, who had obtained options from the owners of the 500 acres of land at Chillum, ½ mile from the District line. This is one of the principal sites being considered for the airport.

Morey frankly admitted that the Sullivans had solicited the options after it became known that the land was shame. Mr. Hoover warned that in the desire of law people to be merciful, the criminal would always be in favor of the prisoner and far away from the protection of society. That the sympathetic mind of the American people has swung too far from the family of the murderer to the family of the murderer.

For his own administration the Chief pledged a strengthening of the law-enforcement agencies by orderly processes, week by week, month by month, year by year, by steady pressure; steady growth by piecemeal recognition for those who do their duty, and by the most rigid scrutiny of the records and mental attitudes of all persons suggested for appointment to official posts in the law-enforcement machinery.

Introduced by Noyes.

Mr. Hoover was introduced by Frank B. Noyes, president of the Associated Press. He said that in asking the President to speak at the luncheon he had assured him of the publishers' desire that the Chief Executive speak with understanding.

"Today you receive, contrary to your usual practice, instead of administrative admonition," Mr. Noyes told the publishers, "the responsibility is mine."

As Mr. Hoover read his speech in a quiet study voice, the audience carried it to the door over two miles of radiotelephones Mrs. Hoover sat in a box surrounded by flowers presented to her on her arrival in the ballroom. As soon as the address was completed the Hoovers left for their return trip to Washington.

In speaking of Mr. Smith before he began reading his prepared address, Mr. Hoover said:

"It would be impossible for me to be present with this association without some word as to my great friend Melville Stone. He was a great American. He had a hand in every way in the building of this institution and through it he gave to our country a great force of enlightenment and of progress, and not the least of his services was the establishment of this institution and the foundations which guarantee its continuance."

Kidnaper of Girl, 12, Sentenced to Year

Devonshire Pleads Guilty to Indictment Under an Old Law.

Philadelphia, April 22 (A.P.)—Curtis E. Devonshire, who took Alice Lubatin, 12, in an automobile to Charlotte, N. C., where he was captured several weeks ago, pleaded guilty to an indictment under an old law charging false imprisonment and was sentenced to one year in the county prison.

The girl identified that Devonshire, who was a salesman, had taken her to show him where a former neighbor lived. She got in his automobile and he drove out of the city. Despite her protests, she said, he drove all night and the next day and finally reached Charlotte. She said that Devonshire was captured and was always promising to take her home.

The child said Devonshire made no attempt to harm her.

Girl in Coma 1,752 Hours Waves Hand at Physician

Special to The Washington Post.

Lynchburg, Va., April 22—Marjorie Dowdy, 10, who has been in coma at Memorial Hospital here since she was struck by an automobile February 8, today waved her hand three times at Dr. George Wilson, who was called this morning in response to his request as he started to leave her in the hospital.

Another sign of improvement was seen in the child's appetite, for she seemed to relish beer broth, which she took during the first few days when she had been fed by a nasal tube. She is taking a great deal of nourishment now and Dr. Wilson said he hoped she would be ready to go home in a day or two. This afternoon she completed 1,752 hours of coma.

EDITORS WILL STUDY NEWS BROADCASTING

Associated Press, at Annual Meeting, Authorizes Its Directors to Investigate.

COMMITTEES ARE NAMED

New York, April 22 (A.P.)—The Associated Press, at its annual business meeting today, authorized its board of directors to make a study of the problem of broadcasting news dispatches of the organization and to report its findings at the 1930 meeting.

The question has aroused wide discussion among the newspapers comprising the association. Victor F. Ridder, speaking for the St. Paul Dispatch, recommended that the board of directors in authorizing chain broadcasting be requested to eliminate stations in cities where any member of the Associated Press objected.

After a general discussion, Joseph Daniel, of the Raleigh (N. C.) News Observer, offered a substitute motion calling for the board to study the question, and his resolution was adopted.

A proposal to provide for five associate members of the board of directors, made by W. T. Anderson, of the Macon (Ga.) Telegraph, was rejected.

Another motion was that the five who received the highest number of votes for directors, but failed of election, make associate members, without power of vote, to serve for one year.

Votes Cast for Directors.

Votes were cast for the four members of the board of directors whose terms expire and for a fifth member to fill a vacancy caused by death. The count was not completed at the time of adjournment. The result will be announced at a meeting tomorrow morning.

The directors whose terms expire are Frank B. Noyes, Washington Star; Adolph S. Ochs, New York Times; B. H. Anthony, New Bedford (Mass.) Standard; Robert McLean, Philadelphia Bulletin; and W. V. Jones, Minneapolis Journal (deceased).

The four directors were reominated, together with John Stewart Bryan, Richmond (Va.) News Leader; John Cowles, Des Moines Register and Capital; Frank E. Gannett, Brooklyn (N. Y.) Eagle; E. B. Jeffers, Greensboro (N. C.) News; Frederick E. Murphy, Minneapolis Tribune; and John L. Stewart, Washington (Pa.) Observer.

Committee on Nominations.

The following were named members of the nominating committee: Chairman, W. T. Anderson, of the Macon (Ga.) News-Herald; secretary, Horace Waizer, Hazelton (Pa.) Standard Sentinel; Samuel E. Hudson, Woonsocket (R. I.) Call and Reporter; Frank H. Hitchcock, Tucson (Ariz.) Citizen; O. S. Warden, Great Falls (Mont.) Tribune; John C. Cohen, Atlanta (Ga.) Journal; Curtis Johnson, Charlotte (N. C.) Observer, and Paul A. Martin, Lansing Journal.

New members of the auditing committee were named as follows: Chairman, A. Perkins, Olympia (Wash.) Commercial; Secretary, T. Bayne Duluth (Minn.) News-Tribune; Alvin L. Stone, Providence (R. I.) Bulletin; and Emanuel Levi, Louisville (Ky.) Courier and Journal.

Shortly after the business meeting opened Mr. Ochs offered a resolution which was adopted by a rising vote, praising the work of the new general manager and counselor of the Associated Press, who died here on February 15. It was voted to send a steel engraving of Mr. Stone to all members of the association and to present a marble bust of him to the executive offices of the association in New York.

After the result of the election of the board of directors is announced tomorrow the board will meet and organize for the coming year.

Letter Shows Finance Firm's Head Killed Self

Los Angeles, Calif., April 22 (A.P.)—A letter left by Joseph W. Walt, automobile finance company president, who was found shot to death in his home at Flintridge, Calif., Saturday night, indicated today that the man had committed suicide so the his $600,000 life insurance might not be used by his company and business associates.

Corporer Frank Nance, in revealing that Walt had penned the letter to his family before he died, said the case was plainly one of suicide and that no inquest would be held. C. J. Rietter, vice-president of the company, admitted the firm had some difficulty with a department of the Federal Government.

Text of President Hoover's Speech on Law Observance

Addressing the annual luncheon of the Associated Press in New York, President Hoover said:

Members and friends of the Associated Press:

I have accepted this occasion for a frank statement of what I consider the fundamental lesson before the American people. Its solution is more vital to the preservation of our institutions than any other question before us. That is the enforcement and obedience to the laws of the United States, both Federal and State.

As only you weigh this for yourselves and if my position is right that you support it, not to support me but to support something infinitely more precious—the one force that holds our civilization together—law.

And I wish to discuss it as law—not to me, nor to any particular law, Federal or State, for ours is a Government of laws made by the people themselves.

A surprising number of our people, otherwise good, consider the law as something that has driven into the extraordinary notion that laws are made for those who choose to obey them. And in addition, our law enforcement machinery is suffering from many infirmities arising out of its technicalities, some of which are due to the procedures and too often, I regret, from insufficient and delinquent officers.

Cites Huge Murder Total.

We are reaping the harvest of these defects. More than 400,000 persons are lawfully killed every year in the United States. Little more than half as many arrests follow. Less than one-sixth of these players are convicted, and but scoundrelously small numbers are adequately punished. Twenty times as many people in proportion to population are lawlessly killed in the United States as in Great Britain. In many of our great cities murders can apparently be committed with impunity. At least 50 cases as serious as robbery in proportion to population are committed in the United States as in Great Britain, and three times as many burglaries.

Even in such punctuated crimes as kidnapping, and for our record stands no comparison with stable nations. No part of the country, rural or urban, is immune. Life and property are relatively more unsafe than in any other civilized country in the world. In all of them, there is a strong desire to pride ourselves on our institutions and the high moral instincts of the great majority of our people. No one will assert that such crimes as we commit would be even if the law were properly enforced.

Dry Law But One Phase.

In order to dispel certain illusions in the public mind on this subject, let me say at once that while violations of law have been increased by inclusion of crimes under the eighteenth amendment and by the vast sums that are poured into the hands of the criminal classes by the patronage of illicit liquor, the most responsible citizens in this but one segment of our problem have publicly stated that our problem is a little romance and heroism and a little flippancy in such discussions. I do not believe it is, its effect is as misleading and as distorting of public conscience as deliberate misrepresentation. Not clarification but confusion of issues arises from it.

Urge All to Aid Laws.

People for many years have been intensely absorbed in business, in the astonishing upbuilding of a great country, and we have attempted to specialize in our occupations, to live a quiet, active, and comfortable life.

Unconsciously, we have carried this psychology into our state of mind toward government. We tend to regard the making of laws and their administration as a function of a group of specialists, government officials, who are better proportioned than we are to live a quiet, active, and comfortable life.

It need not repeat that absolute freedom of the press to discuss public questions is a foundation stone of American liberty. I put it this way, however, to even individual conscience, whether flippancy is a useful or even legitimate device in such discussions.

I do not believe it is, its effect is as misleading and as distorting of public conscience as deliberate misrepresentation. Not clarification but confusion of issues arises from it.

What we are facing today is something far larger and more fundamental—the possibility that respect for law as a fundamental of our civilization is fading from the sensibilities of many people. Whatever the value of any law, it can be upheld only by enforcement officers, then our scheme of government is at an end. Every citizen has a personal duty in it—the duty to order his own actions, to weigh the effect of his example, that his conduct shall be a positive force in his community with respect to the law.

No Criticism of Press.

I have no criticism to make of the American press. I greatly admire its independence and its courage. I sometimes feel that it could give more emphasis to one phase of its work than to another, particularly to the reporting of national problems, but that is not the case.

It is clear, however, that the press is not alone in its responsibility for this problem. I have publicly stated that our problem is a little romance and heroism and a little flippancy in such discussions.

Possibly the time is at hand for the press to systematically demand and support the reorganization of our law enforcement machinery—Federal, State and local—so that crime may be reduced, and on the other hand to demand that the public shall return to the fundamental consciousness of democracy which is that the laws are theirs and that every responsible member of a democracy has the primary duty to obey the law.

It is unnecessary for me to argue the fact that the fundamental of our freedom is obedience to law; that liberty itself has but one foundation, and that is in the law.

Enforcement of Law Urged.

No individual has the right to determine what law shall be obeyed and what shall not be enforced. If a law is not obeyed, it is the right of enforcement officers, then our scheme of government is at an end.

Finally, I wish to again reiterate that the problem of law enforcement is not alone a function of enforcement officers, then our scheme of government is at an end.

It is clear, however, that the press is not alone in its responsibility for this problem.

SINCLAIR SENTENCE IS UPHELD BY COURT

Supreme Tribunal Refuses to Rehear Senate Case and Three-Month Penalty.

JURY SHADOWING ARGUED

(United Press) Nine months of jail sentences imposed on Harry F. Sinclair, the oil multimillionaire, for contempt of court and of the Senate were before the Supreme Court yesterday. The court finally approved three of these months by denying his appeal for rehearing of his Senate contempt conviction. Sinclair heard arguments on the other three heard arguments on the other three months for jury shadowing.

Court officials said the mandate of the high tribunal on the Senate contempt case would be sent to District of Columbia Courts on May 4, when Sinclair will be tried again for his offense and commence his three-months term in the District Jail, and also to pay a $500 fine. The only possible avenues of legal escape now are a pardon from the White House or a suspension of sentence by the judge who originally imposed two months ago.

Court Case Is Heard.

That case settled, as far as the Supreme Court is concerned, the high tribunal turned its attention to the other pending case, sometimes critically, judging from frequent questions, to lawyers who put forth the novel argument that Sinclair was sentenced to six months for jury shadowing under the wrong statute.

Sinclair's lawyer, George P. Hoover, said the District of Columbia Supreme Court had no power to punish for contempt jury shadowing in a case where the jury was ignorant of the law. Charles Douglas, lawyer for W. J. Burns, noted, however, who argued another phase of the appeal on behalf of Burns, asserted that jury shadowing was wrong and that Sinclair and the others concerned should have been indicted and tried before a jury on a charge of conspiring to obstruct justice, and not before a judge on a charge of contempt.

Says Laws Were Confused.

"The Government confuses the laws of contempt with the penal laws," Douglas said.

Owen Roberts, famed oil case prosecutor, charged that the case as stated by the defense lawyers gave only the favorable aspects of the case. He started a chronological tale of the jury shadowing, describing how Burns' detectives were secretly brought to Washington, quartered in scattered hotels and set to watch day and night the comings and goings of the Fall-Sinclair trial jurors. He asserted that the man assigned by Sinclair for the jury-shadowing task, son of one of his many enemies, might "pig-head" the jury—but rebutted by the fact that the very first reports of the detectives showed that no one else was following.

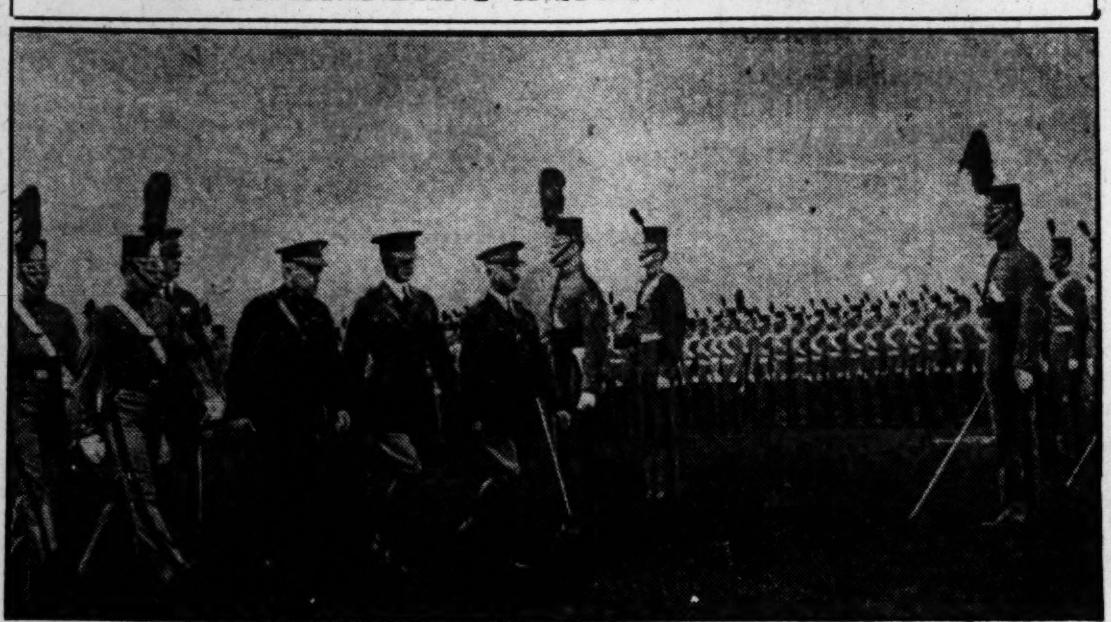

Juror Called "Pig-Headed."

Roberts also asserted that one juror followed by the detectives was Juror Flora. Described in the reports of the defense lawyers as "pig-headed," Roberts will continue his defense of Burns' trial. TRAIN LEAVING SONORA

Nogales, Sonora, April 22 (A.P.)—Unconfirmed reports of a clash between the advance guard of Gen. Juan Andre Almazan's federal troops and supporters of Marcelino Caraveo's rebel defenders in Pulpito Pass were received here today.

The pass is situated in the Sierra Madre Mountains, 8 miles southeast of Agua Prieta, Sonora. The rebels have been reported prepared to oppose any attempt by the federales to break through this almost impregnable position.

At noon a train, loads of train, moved out, including infantry and cavalry. Their destination was not announced but it was believed they were to proceed south to reinforce the rebels.

Mennonite Body Shaken By Sunday Milk Quarrel

Special to The Washington Post.

Hagerstown, Md., April 22.—The Amish Church, a form of Mennonites in this section, is facing disruption as a result of a dispute between older and younger members of the denomination over the question of whether milk should be delivered on Sunday. The question will be up for consideration at the annual conference of the church to be held in May.

The elder members of the church contend that milk should be delivered only six days of the week so as not to violate the biblical order. The younger members want to keep their contracts with concerns which supply milk to metropolitan centers, for it is necessary to ship milk on Sunday. They claim there is no violation of the biblical order.

The members of the denomination wear the simplest kind of clothing, the men wearing hats similar to Quakers and the women untrammelled bonnets. They are agriculturists and most of them specialize in raising thoroughbred cattle and horses.

where it was agreed that the senators' activities will write the policies of the party henceforth, plan to make a vigorous fight, however, to hold their forces together. If they could do this they could probably get enough Republicans to support the Jones law.

But it was felt likely now that they would not be able to get enough to make up for their own desertions and the decision of the Senate.

It is apparent now that they are countering on other Republicans to make up the difference, and are proposing classification, on the votes of those, for example, who are coming up for reelection next year and by all means want to be right with the farmer. It is the fact that they will get some of these votes tentatively that will make it difficult for the Jones law.

Under these circumstances it is not likely that the debenture plan will pass the Senate in the first skirmish but then when the issue between the House and Senate becomes well drawn those regular Republicans who have voted for the bill will point to their action with pride and say that they can now not be placed in the light of opposing the President.

The President's positive stand, taken in a letter to Senator McNary in which he declared the debenture plan would bring disaster to the farmer, had the effect of scaring Senator Coolidge's advisory council off outdoor recreation. SENATE COMPLETES NEW ORGANIZATION

Republicans Retain Control of All Committees After Changes.

INDEPENDENTS WIN POSTS

(Associated Press)

The Senate completed its organization for the Seventy-first Congress yesterday by ratifying changes in the membership of its committees.

The new line-up, which gave Senator Couzens (Republican), Michigan, the chairmanship of the interstate commerce committee, was approved both in the party conferences and on the floor of the Senate without sign of dissension.

The Republican majority retained control of all committees and no other changes were made in the chairmanships of the major committees. Senator Norris, of Nebraska, who bolted the party in the last campaign to support Alfred E. Smith, was returned to the chairmanship of the judiciary committee.

Independents Score.

Republican independents also scored in some committee major posts. The assignments: Senator Cookhart, of Iowa, was assigned to the interstate commerce committee. La Follette also was made chairman of the committee on manufacture, a post held for many years by his father, the late Robert M. La Follette.

Chairman of Charles Curtis to the Vice Presidency and of Senator Watson, of Indiana, to the party leadership made vacant the chairmanships on the rules and interstate commerce committees. Senator Moses, of New Hampshire, took over the leadership on rules, giving the chairmanship on the post-office committee to Senator Phipps of Colorado.

Because of the scramble for major committee assignments, an increase in the membership of some of these was approved by the Senate on motion of Senator Reed (Republican), Pennsylvania.

Other Appointments.

Senators Bingham, Connecticut, and Edwards, Kansas, were given to Republicans placed on the finance committee, which will write the tariff bill. Three Eastern Republicans were put on the agriculture committee, which earlier in the day overrode President Hoover on his opposition to the farm depression plan, a method of farm relief. The new members on this committee for the majority are: Senators Hatfield, West Virginia; Townsend, Delaware, and Walcott, Connecticut.

Senator Shippard, of Minnesota, the lone Farmer-Labor member, was again given assignments by the Republicans and was returned to the chairmanship of the committee on printing.

Lieut. Ent Given Award For Balloon Race Action

Lieut. Ural G. Ent, Air Corps, was awarded yesterday the Cheney award for 1928 for the most daring and skillful in trying to revive Lieut. Paul Ent after lightning had struck their balloon during the national elimination balloon race in 1928.

The award is given annually to the officer of the Air Corps who in the opinion of the Board of Awards has performed the most meritorious and outstanding act of valor and self sacrifice during the year. The award carries with it $500 in cash, a bronze plaque and an engraved certificate.

Day in Congress

SENATE.

Met at noon and adjourned at 1 o'clock to meet at noon today.

Confirms nomination of Ernest Lee Jahncke, of New Orleans, to be Assistant Secretary of the Navy, and that of David S. Ingalls, of Cleveland, to be Assistant Secretary of the Navy in charge of aeronautics. Also confirmed the nomination of Rear Admiral William A. Moffett as chief of the Bureau of Aeronautics.

Judiciary committee voted down a request by Senator Goff (Republican), of West Virginia, that the nomination of former Senator Irvine Lenroot, of Wisconsin, be favorable reported, and instead referred it to the Senate.

Lenroot was nominated by the President to be an associate justice of the United States Court of Customs Appeals. Other nominations received from the President were Seth W. Rich, of North Dakota; James A. Almquist, Attorney General; Julius Klein, of Massachusetts, to be Assistant Secretary of Commerce; Raymond S. Patton, of Ohio, to be director of the coast and geodetic survey. Earl D. Church, of Connecticut, to be Commissioner of Fisheries; and L. L. Ladd, of Maine, to be chief of the chemical warfare service with rank of major general; Col. Stephen Ogden Fugus, to be chief of infantry, with rank of major general.

Agriculture committee, opposing the stand of President Hoover, approved, 3 to 2, the debt-burden plan in the farm relief bill. Majority Leader Watson afterward said he was certain that the Senate would follow President Hoover's advice and eliminate the debt-burden provision.

Congressional Field Urged.

Maj. Clayton Ewing, of the utilities committee of the Federation of Citizens Associations, urged the commission to inspect the field of the Congressional Airport, Inc., outside of Rockville. Earlier in the day Maj. Harry M. Howard, president of the concern, had described the advantages of the airport, but was vague as to whether or not it was for public use.

S. M. Warren, Jr., suggested that a 10-acre tract in Virginia be purchased as an auxiliary field. The site is on the Leesburg pike, about 8 miles from the White House. The owners, he said, were asking $2,500 an acre.

W. E. Hutton urged the purchase of a 1,260-acre site on the Potomac River south of Alexandria, where the land could be had for $900 an acre.

Senator Bingham said after the hearing that the commission might make a tour of the various sites that have been suggested. He also announced that Maj. Young had agreed to serve as an advisor to the committee.

GIBSON ARMS PLAN

HAILED BY POWERS

Lord Cuschendun Leads Parley Delegates in Accepting U. S. Reduction Principle.

WILL SPEED AGREEMENTS

Geneva, April 22 (U.P.)—The United States is willing to agree to any reduction of armaments, however drastic, which leaves no type of war vessel unrestricted, Hugh S. Gibson, American Ambassador to Belgium, told the League of Nations preparatory disarmament commission today.

The American delegate to the commission put disarmament discussion on an entirely new and "common sense" basis by offering a concrete proposal on which negotiations might proceed. His announcement of United States willingness to accept a compromise agreement to effect drastic reduction of arms was expected to speed negotiations toward the ultimate end of another general disarmament conference.

Representatives of the various powers led by Lord Cuschendun, of Great Britain, received the American declaration cordially and promised that their delegations would give them full consideration.

Gibson said that the United States, as a compromise, would accept the French terms of limitation of total naval tonnage as a basis for discussion, specifying limitation of large ships and small ships, but reserving the right to increase tonnage in certain categories by transferring from other categories. The United States always has contended limitation should be made on total tonnage and Gibson said no reason had arisen to change that attitude.

Points of Gibson Address.

The three most important points in the speech were:

1. Insistence on the necessity of the commission's agreeing on a budget and final time for the disarmament project.
2. President Hoover's conviction that the Kellogg treaty for renunciation of war created a propitious moment for disarmament progress which must be taken advantage of immediately.

3. The naval problem, which is really concerned only in the signatures of the Washington five-power conference, can be discussed within the preparatory commission itself.

Gibson urged that the commission proceed on the idea that "common sense" agreement is needed; that all nations are friends and that all nations intend to settle conflicts peacefully.

"Mr. Gibson gives us an entirely new impulse for our labors," said President London, president of the commission.

Representatives of Germany, Austria, Belgium, Spain, France, England, Japan, Holland, Poland, Sweden, Switzerland, Czechoslovakia and the International Red Cross attended.

Senator Cremonesi, president of the Italian Red Cross, delivered the inaugural address and was elected president of the commission.

INSTITUTE INDORSES GORIAS LABORATORY

Directors of Memorial Group
Vision Sanitary Project as Pan-American Aid.

CURTIS NAMED TO BOARD

Indorsement of the recent tentative acceptance of the Gorgas Memorial Laboratory, in Panama, designated as a medical "workhouse" in a program seeking to place all the Americas on a sanitary basis, and election of Vice President Charles Curtis on the directorate of the Gorgas Memorial Institute featured a special session of the organization's board of directors yesterday at its offices, 1331 G street northwest.

Former President Calvin Coolidge, whose term as head of the institute was automatically extended upon his leaving the White House and whose place has been filled by President Hoover, was elected to the institute's advisory council, together with former Vice President Charles G. Dawes, President Florencio Harmodio Arosemena of Panama, and Henry L. Doherty, of New York City.

In addition to Vice President Curtis, Surgeon Edward Riggs, of the United States Navy, and Rear Admiral T. Stitt were elected to the board of directors.

Consulting Board Planned.

In line with its formal acceptance of the laboratory, the "board" of directors also voted that each Central and South American country, cooperating with the United States and Panama, name a consulting board to the Gorgas Memorial Laboratory in its investigation of methods for exterminating the mosquito carrier of malaria and curing malaria sufferers.

L. P. Clement, secretary of agriculture and public works of Panama, in discussing at this meeting the representative action of the laboratory, said it was responsible to Dr. William Martin, as chairman of the institute's board of directors, characterized that action and its dedication as the starting point toward realization of the great vision of Gen. Gorgas for widespread sanitation.

Laboratory for Science.

He declared that the laboratory was being opened "to the labors of the men of science to facilitate their investigations and to make available to the physicians of all races and all countries the knowledge that the scientific experimental center will be able to supply."

Dr. Martin, in presiding at the session, explained that the program for the laboratory, for the maintenance of which Congress recently voted an annuity of $60,000, provides primarily for the development of methods of controlling and exterminating malaria as an important research to every industry with business in that section of the world, aside from its humanitarian importance.

"If this laboratory can discover a cure for malaria, it would mean a saving for the world in millions of dollars, besides a saving of thousands of lives and thousands of sick beds," Dr. Martin declared. He called the cooperative movement the greatest "merger" the Americas have ever witnessed, "a merging of the tropical with the semitropical and temperate zones in a concerted effort to reduce disease."

heave to, three more shots were fired at the collier. A lieutenant, an ensign and a boat's crew then boarded the ship. After the "indignities," which Capt. Keating detailed, the lieutenant told the master and his staff "not to leave the spot" until the cutter had gone out of sight, adding, "We've got plenty of shells left and we're not afraid to use them."

T. A. D. Jones, president of the coal company, said he had placed the master in the hands of an attorney with instructions to make a formal complaint and protest to Secretary of the Treasury Mellon, and if need be, to President Hoover.

After the attack, the collier, which piles between Norfolk, Va., and this port, was about 100 miles southeast of Montauk Point, Long Island.

Capt. Keating declared that the lieutenant and ensign, after mustering him into his cabin, for inspection of his arms, artificer and sailor, displayed such ignorance as to be a disgrace to the United States Navy and to any man who is supposed to understand admiralty laws and shipping conditions in general."

Capt. Keating said his rights as master of his ship were outraged, while "every law of the sea prevailing in peace time was broken here."

"We would have been sunk if we had disobeyed the most stupid command," he concluded.

Fort Lauderdale, Fla., April 22 (A.P.).—Coast Guardsmen were intoxicated and made prisoners in a fishing party Saturday night were denied today by R. L. Jack, commander of the Coast Guard base here, after a closed hearing.

They charged that while their party was on a fishing trip at Burnham Island in New River, a Coast Guardsman, one of whom as boatswain's mate Lord, came to their camp and searched the boat, later taking supper with them and afterward making them prisoners because they found fault with the Wanderlust's papers. The men were said to have charged the Coast Guardsmen brought lighter to the island and became intoxicated.

After the hearing, from which newspaper men were barred, Commander Jack issued a statement denying the charge. Slot machines were outlawed in the District yesterday in a decision by Justice Gordon (inset).

SLOT MACHINE DRIVE ORDERED BY JUSTICE

District attorney's office were deluged with complaints that the machines were being used by school children.

The telephone company complained that metal discs were being used instead of 5-cent pieces and were putting pay-station telephones out of order.

In many instances, according to police, the metal discs were redeemed by merchants for merchandise. Operation of the machines, they declared, is contrary to the District's code of law since the coin device partakes of the character of a game of chance, exciting a gambling instinct in patrons.

The motion to dismiss the injunction petition was made by Assistant Corporation Counsel Richmond B. Keech, who appeared on behalf of the Police Department.

Before instituting the drive against the machines, police officials and the Birmingham, Ala., April 22 (A.P.).—Mrs. Margaret Fay Wharton, widow of Beverly Wharton, who was clubbed to death in his home here last week, was placed in the county jail tonight on order of Coroner J. D. Russum.

A. R. Hall, a roomer in the house occupied by the Whartons, also was held in jail in connection with the investigation. Several colored men arrested last week have been released.

The arrest of Mrs. Wharton followed a fifteen-minute storm at Louisville and New Albany, Ind., which did property damage of approximately a quarter of a million dollars. Wind and hail shattered windows in many buildings.

At Walton, Ky., two boys were killed when lightning struck a barn on which they had gathered to watch a game.

Arabia, Ga., toads killed thirteen persons, eleven of them negroes working on a plantation at Tiller. Property damage was reported from other sections of that State.

THE DEATH OF DEBENTURE.
President Hoover's opposition to the debenture plan embodied in the Senate farm relief bill means that it has received its death blow. It can not run the gauntlet of the House and a presidential veto. The Senate committee has voted to retain this plan in the bill, but already there is Democratic defection, which will be speedily followed by the defection of Republicans who are anxious to cooperate with President Hoover.

The ten "weaknesses" of the debenture plan as outlined by President Hoover are such as to make it seem impossible for Congress, or even the erratic Senate, to adopt the plan. The fatal weaknesses of the plan are: It would create overproduction and thus eventually defeat itself; it would result in heavy shipments of foreign goods to the United States, including cotton manufactures, pork products and dairy products, thus disabling some agricultural industries; it would result in retaliatory foreign tariffs that would close those markets to American farm products; and finally, it would require an increase in taxes to make up for the drain upon the Treasury.

In providing for farm relief the Republican party must take into account the American consumer, or suffer the consequences. A bounty upon agricultural exports would increase the cost of living, at least for the time being, and at the same time would increase taxation. What political party could hope to survive after enacting such legislation? The danger of mistreating the consumer lurks in any farm relief bill, and there will be difficulty enough in shaping this class legislation without inviting disaster by including the debenture plan. The supporters of the plan claim that the bounty would go direct to the farmer, and would at least give him speedy and tangible relief; but Mr. Hoover points out that the first effect of the proposed legislation would be to fill the pockets of manufacturers, dealers and speculators in farm products "without a cent of return to the farmer or consumer."

It is noticeable that the Senate "progressives" favor the debenture plan. These "progressives," who call themselves Republicans, are the deadly enemies of that party. Their counsel is a mixture of treachery and folly. Democrats who depend upon an alliance with these party traitors are usually betrayed in their turn, at the most awkward moments.

The Democratic party could gain nothing, even if it should succeed with the aid of faithless Republicans in pushing through the debenture plan. The veto would kill their efforts, and they would go into the next campaign with a losing record. Instead of putting President Hoover in a hole on account of his defeat of farm relief, the Democratic party would find him more popular than ever, as Mr. Coolidge was when he killed the McNary-Haugen bill.

Republicans and Democrats alike should fight shy of the debenture plan. Leave that fool proposal to the bogus Republicans.

GOV. WILLIAM SPRY.

The death of Commissioner William Spry, of the General Land Office, removes from the service of the Government a man whose life had been largely devoted to the welfare of his State and the Nation. Mr. Spry, an Englishman by birth, came to this country when a lad. He was long politically prominent in Utah, and his appointment as head of the Land Office in 1921 was in recognition of his ability as an administrator and his services to the Republican party.

Mr. Spry climbed to the Utah governorship by way of numerous local positions. He served as county collector, city councilman, president of the State board of land commissioners, and United States marshal. His two terms as governor lasted from 1909 to 1917.

This experience qualified him for more important service under the Federal Government. He served under three administrations. In 1927 Mr. Spry announced he would be a candidate for the Republican senatorial nomination in Utah, but he withdrew from the race after a severe illness.

Having grown up in the West, he knew the problems of the public land States and was well qualified to shape the policy of the Government in dealing with them. His recent appointment by President Hoover as a member of the oil conservation committee gave evidence of the President's high opinion of his ability.

Commissioner Spry will be missed in Washington, and in his home State his memory will be cherished as one of its most distinguished public servants.

DEMOCRATS IN THE SENATE.

At the meeting of the executive and advisory committees of the Democratic national committee in New York last week it was agreed that the policies of the party would be shaped for the next three years by the Democratic leaders in the Senate. The debates will furnish Democrats with an opportunity to express their views, and their attitude toward proposals offered by the Republicans will determine the policy of the Democratic party.

In Senator Robinson, of Arkansas, the Democratic party has a leader who may be depended upon to deal with great questions as a statesman. By cooperation with the party in power when it offers desirable or necessary legislation, and by prompt exposure of the errors of the opposition, together with constructive suggestions, the Democratic leader in the Senate will find many opportunities to promote his party's cause. But in order to command the country's confidence the Senate Democratic conference must do good teamwork under Senator Robinson's direction.

Among the able lieutenants of Senator Robinson are Senators Harrison, of Mississippi; Swanson, of Virginia; Caraway, of Arkansas; Walsh, of Montana; Sheppard, of Texas; Pittman, of Nevada, and Hawes, of Missouri. Each of these Democrats possesses qualifications for work of character beneficial to the country and therefore creditable to the Democratic party.

Mere criticism and obstruction of the Republican program in Congress will not rebuild the Democratic party. There must be offered a better brand of legislation, and a more positive set of policies. A party responsible for the Government is always tempted to resort to opportunism, while the opposition usually descends to quibbling and empty criticism. If the Senate Democrats will now hold the Republican administration and Congress majority strictly to account, and be alert in offering improvements upon the measures put forward, they can raise the Democratic party in public estimation and lay the foundation for a hopeful campaign in 1932.

History shows that the Democratic party is indestructible. Its defeats are sometimes debacles that seem to be fatal, but they are battles, and not war. The Democratic party can say, like the Old Campion, "My life is war; and wherever my warhorse treads, there are the boundaries of Castle." As economic conditions change the battlegrounds the Democratic party reshapes its lines and returns to the charge. If it will hold true to its strongest principle—the safeguarding of the States against Federal encroachment—it will always hold faithful followers and eventually it will command the support of a great majority. The people will perceive some day, and perhaps soon, that they must preserve the States or lose their own liberties. In that day they will necessarily turn to the Democratic party to execute their will.

The Democrats of the Senate can do much to hasten their party's return to power. Let them be watchful, generous in teamwork, and of good courage!

RED CROSS CONVENTION.

From his background of experience man has learned to anticipate disaster. He has learned that each year will witness destructive winds, overswollen rivers, earthquakes and fires. He does not know when or where disaster will strike, but he knows that before the year is out there will have been disasters affecting multitudes and demanding the assistance, financial or otherwise, of those so fortunate as to be unaffected. It is to the Red Cross that man turns in his hour of dire need and it is through the Red Cross that he has organized disaster relief.

This week the American Red Cross is meeting in Washington to consider its vast program of humanitarianism. While the 700 delegates are in session, the organization is ministering to the stricken in 20 States extending from Minnesota to Florida. During the year past, the Red Cross rendered aid in 60 major domestic disasters extending over 38 States, involving over 700,000 people and necessitating an expenditure of over $18,000,000. When the Mississippi spilled over into the lowlands the Red Cross brought relief to the suffering and subsequently aided in their rehabilitation. When a tornado swept through Porto Rico and Florida the Red Cross housed the homeless and ministered to the injured. Each disaster, large or small, is alike in one respect: the Red Cross always is ready to go to the rescue and it always finds money and means to speed a return to normalcy.

This is the eighth national convention of the Red Cross. It may well take satisfaction from its record of achievement and the unique position it has come to occupy in the heart of America. It does well to plan for the future even though it can not know what the future holds. The American people know that the Red Cross will not break faith: they will continue to depend on "the greatest mother" in their hours of need.

NO SHOOTING IN THE STREETS.
Police Capt. Charles T. Peck, commander of the Eleventh Precinct, through which runs the southeastern avenue of approach to the city, is authority for the statement that bootlegger cars are coming into the city from Maryland in large numbers, despite the enactment of the Jones law. Bootleggers, in his opinion, have not been scared off by the law, but have adopted more violent tactics. In a car abandoned by rum runners recently a sawed-off shotgun was discovered, and a rumor is afoot that bootleggers have equipped themselves with machine guns. In addition, smoke screen devices have come back to popularity in rum-running circles, despite the fact that their use constitutes a felony. In the last two weeks more than fourteen rum runners have eluded pursuit by bringing into action apparatus which belches forth a cloud of acrid, heavy smoke.

Every resource of the Police Department, consistent with the protection of the public, should be brought to bear against these criminals. They are guilty not only of violating the prohibition laws, but they also drive their vehicles in such fashion as to endanger innocent lives and property. Capt. Peck has discussed with his superiors the new problems of liquor law enforcement brought about by the use of smoke screens and the greater daring of rum runners, and he suggests that policemen should be permitted to fire upon rum runners who fail to heed commands to halt.

Under no circumstances should such permission be granted. Revolvers can not be discharged in city streets without endangering innocent lives, and it is the primary duty of policemen to protect life. The fact that bootleggers have adopted smoke-making devices to aid in their get-aways is deplorable, but when a policeman's vision is obscured by smoke it is most important that he refrain from using his revolver. The capture of bootleggers at the cost of killing pedestrians and innocent motorists is too big a price to pay.

THE BORDER PATROL

By ROBE CARL WHITE,
Assistant Secretary of Labor,
In the National Republic.

Restrictive immigration is now the established policy of our Government, and it was fixed none too soon.

The Immigration Bureau, one of the number of bureaus constituting the Department of Labor, has the stupendous task of enforcing our immigration laws. This bureau employs approximately 3,000 persons. The country is divided into 35 administrative districts, including Porto Rico, Hawaii and Alaska, and more than 200 immigration stations and substations are located at seaports, along our land boundaries and in the principal inland cities. The law provides that every alien entering the country must be examined by an immigrant inspector. United States citizens reentering the country are also interviewed, but only for the purpose of ascertaining their citizenship status.

In carrying on the work immigrant inspectors come in contact annually with upward of 20,000,000 individuals. The service maintains a border patrol unit of about 900 men, apart from the regular force of immigrant inspectors, and these hardy patrol officers guard our land and coast boundaries and every year detect and turn back approximately 20,000 aliens who are attempting to enter the country illegally.

History shows that the Democratic party is indestructible. Its defeats are sometimes debacles that seem to be fatal, but they are battles, and not war. The Democratic party can say, like the Old Campion, "My life is war; and wherever my warhorse treads, there are the boundaries of Castle." The Sum and Substance of It.*LETTERS TO THE EDITOR*The Democratic Deficit.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The decisive victory of the Republicans in the last presidential election brought forth abundant discussion as to whether or not the Democratic party would survive the blow. For a time discussion on the formation of a new party was rife, but now the movement seems to have died a natural death, and it is generally conceded that the Democrats will continue as a militant party of opposition until they are able to elect a President from their own ranks.

In carrying on the work immigrant inspectors come in contact annually with upward of 20,000,000 individuals. The service maintains a border patrol unit of about 900 men, apart from the regular force of immigrant inspectors, and these hardy patrol officers guard our land and coast boundaries and every year detect and turn back approximately 20,000 aliens who are attempting to enter the country illegally.

The duties of our immigrant inspectors and border patrol inspectors are not limited to inspecting applicants for admission, and in preventing illegal entries to our country, for one of their most important functions is to arrest and deport aliens who are now here illegally, and these deportations have reached an annual total of 12,000.

Our enforcement problems have changed materially in the last few years. They have shifted from our seaports to our land borders. Originally most of our immigrants arrived at our seaports. Now immigration is so restricted that only a few are permitted to enter, and these must be carefully examined before they embark. The present law has enabled us to inaugurate a humane service, which we could only dream about under the old system of regulating immigration. This is the primary inspection abroad of our prospective immigrants. Formerly an immigrant had no assurance that he would be admitted on his arrival at a United States port. Every year thousands of unfortunate people crossed the ocean only to find themselves unable to meet the requirements of the immigration laws. Under the new system the immigrant whose turn has been reached under the quota is examined by United States immigration and medical officers at the nearest American consulate before he is given an immigration visa, with the happy result that but a small number of immigrants who are thus inspected are turned back at American ports.

Under the new system the immigrant whose turn has been reached under the quota is examined by United States immigration and medical officers at the nearest American consulate before he is given an immigration visa, with the happy result that but a small number of immigrants who are thus inspected are turned back at American ports.

The desire of European aliens to come to this country has not lessened. The latest available figures from American consuls, based upon the estimate of the number of demands for immigration visas, show over 2,000,000 aliens are on the waiting list, waiting their turn. Even this figure does not give a correct picture, since the waiting lists in some countries are not kept open the year around. If they were, many millions more would indicate their desire to come to the United States. This demand is a continuous and a clamorous one, and reports show that aliens who can not secure visas are gaining admission in great numbers to foreign contiguous countries—Canada, Mexico and Cuba—with the United States as their ultimate destination.

Again, we have the ever-present problem of ridding the country of the undesirable alien and the alien who is here illegally. During the period between 1921 and 1924 it became apparent that it was useless to close our front doors, the seaports of our country, where the great bulk of our immigrants had previously landed, and leave open the back doors—our land boundaries between Canada and Mexico. No provision was made in the 1921 law for the adequate guarding of our land borders, the result being that aliens in countless numbers, when refused admission at our ports of entry, or who had knowledge that the quota allotted their respective country had been exhausted, proceeded to foreign contiguous territories and came across the land boundaries without inspection.

The smuggling of aliens into the United States prior to 1924, when the border patrol was established, constituted a great menace. This menace has been reduced and will be further reduced as time goes on. The number of aliens who gained illegal entry during this time is problematical and is variously estimated by different men. All agree, however, that this number amounts to many thousands.

The Rabbit Wouldn't Develop Speed If Foxes Were Slow.

By ROBERT QUILLEN

If you are now as big as your job, you must do one of two things: stop growing or get another job.

Doubtless you know about goldfish—that they remain small if kept in a bowl and grow large if placed in a pond.

And the nurseryman's trees, if kept close in the row as seedlings are planted, soon become cramped and stop growing, but send out new roots in uncrowded soil and continue their development when transplanted to open ground.

Men are, in this particular, precisely like the fish and the trees.

When a crisis comes in a nation's life or the affairs of some commercial organization, there appears as though by magic a man qualified to bring order out of chaos and avert disaster.

Frequently he is a man unknown to fame and people ask: "How did he manage such ability to keep himself concealed?"

The truth is, the great one's abilities are as new as the crisis itself. He had within himself the capacity for great things, but his abilities lay dormant because his work required little.

He was root-bound, as a plant is in a pot.

He fills a large place in history because he grew up to his responsibilities, but any one of a score of other men might have done as well or better if given the same opportunity to grow.

When a man has developed in every direction as far as his job will permit—when he has exhausted the possibilities of the job itself and the future offers nothing more than routine—he simply can't grow if he doesn't get out.

And when a man has exhausted the possibilities of his environment and community in so far as they affect his particular kind of work, he must choose between the everlasting sameness, that is stagnation and rust, and migration to a larger field.

The man who says there is no opportunity in his present environment usually is one who could not find opportunity anywhere, but if he has in truth wrung his present location dry of possibilities, he must move quickly if he would continue his growth unchecked.

Few men do their utmost because their utmost isn't required of them. They can handle their jobs without extending themselves to the limit. And they lose interest because they haven't obstacles enough to arouse their fighting spirit.

sweet peas and ferns, and the bride, who was given in marriage by Father, was dressed in a gown of ivory satin fashioned with a long, tight bodice, and a long, ruffled skirt, the edges of the ruffles beaded with pearls. She carried a shower bouquet of roses and lilies of the valley. Her veil of tulie was caught on each side with clasp pins of orange blossoms and the long train formed by the veil was carried by Eleanor Lanahan, who wore a frock of pink of organza.

Following the ceremony there was a small reception and wedding supper, after which Mr. and Mrs. Fernandez started on their wedding trip to California, where they will make their home. The bride was wearing a navy blue ensemble of flat-sleeve, trimmed with tan, and a small tan hat.

The last dance of the Friday Evening Dancing Class this season will be a father-daughter and will be on May 3 at the large ballroom of the Willard. Reservations for tables are being made through Mrs. Parker West.

Mr. and Mrs. Goodhue Livingston, of New York, are passing some time at the Carlton.

Mr. Henry Morgenstern, of New York City, is also at the Carlton for a week.

The University of Chicago Alumni Association is holding an annual dinner-tonight at the Cosmos Club, at 7 o'clock. Two of the professors from the university will be the principal speakers. Prof. David Stevens and Prof. Quincy Wright, of the department of political science.

Among the alumni who will attend are Senator Arthur R. Robinson of Indiana; Mr. William P. MacCracken, Jr., Assistant Secretary of Commerce for Aeronautics; Dr. H. M. Moulton, head of the Brookings Foundation; Dr. Everett Lyman, of the Robert Brookings Graduate School; Dr. S. S. Bowles, of the National Research Council; Mr. A. D. Stewart, head of the transportation section of the U. S. Chamber of Commerce; Miss Grace Abbott, head of the Children's Bureau, and Mr. G. O. Smith, head of the Geological Survey, a trustee of the university.

A distinguished audience will attend when the curtain goes up at the Wardman Park Theater tonight at 8:30 o'clock, on the revival of the old play, "Fare Nights at the Old Vic," given by the Columbia Players under auspices of the Community Drama Guild of Washington.

Seldom has so much interest been aroused in an amateur production here. Every old fashioned habit of indifference to amateur efforts has been immediately repudiated from social leaders and others interested in their success. Mrs. Nicholas Longworth is entertaining a party of twelve: Mrs. Tracy Dowes is a party of four; Mr. and Mrs. E. I. Lewis, the International Commerce Commission, are having a group of guests among them Judge and Mrs. G. C. McCord, at dinner, later going on to the play; Mrs. James W. Wadsworth is entertaining a group of friends, Mr. Cleveland Peabody, Mr. F. Marion Law, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Lowell Moore, Mr. C. Williams, Mrs. Reeve Lewis, Mrs. Charles H. Johnson and Dr. and Mrs. Rinehart also have reservations.

Miss Hattie Bowles will sell for Europe May 2 for an extended tour of England and the continent.

Miss Celine Gigou, of New York, has been a guest over the weekend at the Wardman Park Hotel. She will return to New York today.

AMERICA IS PRAISED AT RED CROSS MEET

Humanitarian Work Credited
With Leading Way to World Peace.

CITY SCHOOLS HONORED

That America, through the Red Cross, has taken the lead in humanitarian work, and that America is expected to take the lead and guide the world from war, were beliefs expressed at the general session of the American Red Cross convention at the United States Chamber of Commerce last night.

"In so far as we keep on organizing as real social forces that are good, and in our nature and dedication to the work strong men of vision, science, loyalty and action, these forces will become the armies of the future," Emilio del Toro, chief justice of the Supreme Court of Porto Rico, said after paying tribute to the work of the Red Cross in his country following the recent hurricane.

"With these forces—order and love—working from day to day more in harmony and efficiently, America will conquer the heart of the world and triumph in the universal conscience."

German Pleads for Peace.

In paying tribute to the American Red Cross, Col. Paul Draudt, of the imperial German army and now vice chairman of the Board of Governors of the League of Red Cross Societies, addressed his plea for peace.

"With the lesson of the tragic World War behind us, it is not evident that the nations must join efforts with the sole aim of building up an edifice of peace, consecrated to common activities designed to make peace time something more than a mere interval between wars?" he said.

"The Red Cross is one of the greatest forces uniting mankind everywhere in common effort for the promotion of human welfare. The original purpose of the Red Cross was to heal the sick and comfort the suffering, and necessarily leads one to the conception that the only true means of humanizing warfare must needs be its abolition."

Prairie Kellogg Pact.

Col. Draudt spoke in admiration of the Kellogg peace pact and said that America, as in every good movement, has taken the lead to bring about peace.

The Red Cross has furnished the most satisfactory method of uniting the human family," Ray Lyman Wilbur, Secretary of the Interior, declared in the final address of the session.

"The Red Cross has learned not only to care for the suffering, but to prevent suffering of the future. The Red Cross is truly the symbol of the human heart."

The District of Columbia won the honors of having the highest percentage of school children enrolled in the Junior Red Cross. Exactly 61 per cent of the school children in the city are enrolled. An honor banner was awarded to Dean Cowie, 1336 Massachusetts avenue northwest, and the banner is to be held by Columbia Junior High School because it is the oldest Junior High school in the District.

New Hampshire Gets Banner.

New Hampshire is the State banner for enrolling the largest percentage of Red Cross members in proportion to its population. Mrs. Allen Holcomb received it for the State department.

While their elders engage in the conclave of the American National Red Cross for the greatest humanitarian work, relief for disaster victims during their convocation which began here yesterday, the Juniors are a little group of delegates to the Juniors Red Cross facing problems and working them out efficiently in the auditorium of the Corcoran Art Gallery. All of the Juniors are school children and their aims are to bring help from bringing cheer to hospital patients to helping to educate backwoods children.

With the convening of the first session yesterday at 10 a. m., to further the work of the "Greatest Mother in the World," a club showed what relief is being exerted in many States at the present moment, according to the announcement of James L. Fleser, vice chairman in charge of domestic relations.

He told the 700 delegates of the outstanding needs of Alabama, Georgia, Kentucky and Arkansas, and of the way in which the Red Cross is meeting them.

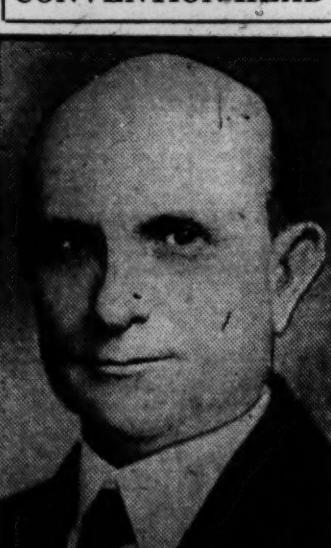

"Preparation Is Increasing."

"Before we meet again," Mr. Fleser continued, "it confidently may be said that much more work will be accomplished in the matter of chapter and national preparedness than in any corresponding period in the organization's history."

Ernest P. Bicknell, vice chairman in charge of insular and foreign operations, reminded the delegates in his address that people of foreign countries regard the American Red Cross as America.

"To the people of a foreign country the American Red Cross is Amer-

KING GEORGE THANKS WORLD FOR PRAYERS

Personal Letter Written to
All Well Wishers for Their Solicitude.

GRATITUDE SIMPLY TOLD

Craigwell House, Bognor, England, April 22 (U.P.)—King George V today wrote a personal letter of thanks to the people of the British Empire and of many other countries who said prayers for his recovery or sent messages of sympathy to Buckingham Palace during his long and serious illness.

The simplicity of the king's letter made more emphatic his "heartful of thankfulness" which he said was far deeper than any sense of relief when the receiver committed suicide, said that the name of the man who had suggested suicide to Steinhardt was known, but that he did not liberty to divulge it. He said Horace L. Morris Philadelphia lawyer, who arranged for Steinhardt's surrender, had been told by Steinhardt of a man "he frequently had suggested to take his own life."

Morris, in New York today, said after the funeral service that his friend was closeted for more than an hour with Charles H. Tuttle, United States district attorney, in his office.

The king's letter follows:

"The king's heart is full of long illness and recovery of far deeper origin than any mere sense of relief. I have been brought back from the danger and weariness of the past months by the wonderful skill and devotion of my doctors and surgeons and nurses and help came from another source of strength."

"As month after month went by, I learned of the widespread and loving solicitude with which the queen and others were surrounding me, to picture myself to the crowds of friends waiting and watching at my gates and to think of the still greater number of those who, in every part of the empire, were remembering me with prayers and good wishes."

"Neither than this I can not dwell upon, than this I can not dwell upon, the most vivid experiences of my life. It was encouragement beyond description to feel my constant and earnest desire has been granted—the desire to gain the confidence and affection of my people."

"My thoughts carried me even farther than this. I can not dwell upon, than this I can not dwell upon, the generous sympathy shown me by unknown friends in many other countries without new and moving hope.

I long to believe it possible that my experiences and attainments may soon appear no longer exceptional when the national anxieties of all the peoples of the world shall be felt a common source of human sympathy, a common claim on human friendship."

"I am not yet able to bear the strain of public ceremony, but I look forward on some appointed day to joining my people at home and overseas in thanking Almighty God not merely for my own recovery, but for this new evidence of growing kindness, significant of the trend now of moral and spiritual awakening. I hope this message will reach all those, even in the most remote corners of the world, from whom I received words of sympathy and good will."

U. S. Witness.

RECEIVER'S RITES HELD

New York, April 22 (A.P.)—The investigation into the charge that Davis A. Steinhardt, fugitive bankruptcy receiver, who committed suicide last Friday in Philadelphia as he was about to surrender himself, had been goaded to his death went on today as the lawyer's body was interred at private services.

Steinhardt's attorney, who carried on a three-months' search for Steinhardt and who was in Philadelphia ready to arrest him when the receiver committed suicide, said that the name of the man who had suggested suicide to Steinhardt was known, but that he did not liberty to divulge it.

The annual dinner for members of the Ten-Year-Club of the Hecht Co. was held last evening at the Town and Country Club. Judge Robert Mattingly speaker of the evening, was introduced by H. H. Levi, the toastmaster. Charles B. Duncan, another speaker, welcomed the four new members.

The program was arranged by C. L. Moore, general manager of the store and charter member of the club. The entertainment was furnished by four employees of the store, the Misses Edith Etchison, Lucille Gooding and Elizabeth Hager, singers, and Miss Mae Luckett, dancer.

New members of the club are Edgar Hugley, Abbie Goodrich, MacCoy, and Miss Florence Ingerson.

McKinney Man, 33, Dies
Following Auto Crash

To the Washington Post.

Petersburg, Va., April 22.—Frank Heartwell, 38, of McKinney, died at Petersburg Hospital this morning from injuries received in an automobile accident at Wilson, Dinwiddie County, yesterday afternoon, when an automobile in which he was riding with his cousin, Warren Heartwell, 36, of McKinney, overturned.

Only 93 persons were passengers and 24 of them previously had been vaccinated. The others were permitted to continue after providing sanitary passes in accordance with the regulations.

There is no law covering the siding or sheathing of suicide, but there is a Federal statute which provides a prison sentence of a year and a fine of $1,000 for any one who "performs any act which induces any one else to commit an act that results in a wilful manner of death from a Federal prison."

Steinhardt's widow, collapsed today as Rabbi Gabriel Schatz was reciting the Kaddish for the dead at the simple funeral service held in a funeral chapel.

The services were private and attended only by a few relatives and friends.

CHAPTER III.

An Adventure in the Air.
Klondike Kate continues her story. Old King Brady is interested and decides the case is worth his time. He watches Kate ship some mysterious cases over to her yacht. They proceed to French River, and the Bradys and Kate go up in a balloon.

They flew on, following the line of the mountain. They flew over the first cove and looking down saw the Yukon Lilloo lying at anchor. They attracted no attention.

"This is great," cried Kate. "I have always wanted to go up in a balloon, but never expected it would be like this."

They soon passed some distance below the first cove and the wind died down. They hung suspended in the air, hardly moving at all.

Kate had got uneasy. "Why don't we go? Frank? Can't you do something?" she asked.

"Not without some wind. We will have plenty in a few minutes. I rock on." He pointed in a direction back of Kate. Clouds were sweeping toward them, growing blacker every instant. Old King Brady had recognized their danger, but as he knew next to nothing about balloons had decided to keep still.

"We can't land here," said Kate, as she gazed at the clouds.

"No. Indeed. We'd land in the tree tops and starve to death before we could ever get out of that noise down there."

Bitterly the Bradys regretted they had not allowed themselves to enter on such a foolhardy piece of business. But there was worse to come and it came in a moment:

Suddenly the wind started up from the northeast and the darkness of Erebus was upon them. Lightning flashed followed each other with fearful rapidity, and the peal after peal of thunder was terrifying. The rain came in a few moments and it fell in such torrents the Bradys had never seen equalled.

"We must get down out of this or we'll all be lost," shouted Old King Brady.

"I have already ordered Frank to let out the gas!" screamed back Klondike Kate.

Frank was moving about manipulating ropes, but it was so dark none of them could tell just what he was about.

The wind suddenly shifted and the balloon was being sent along at a frightening speed. All they could do was to hold on for dear life. The balloon was descending and they soon found themselves below the clouds. They were lost. Old King Brady saw a great ledge of rocks beneath them and realized they were passing over a barrier of some kind. Then in a moment he realized the ledge was dropping terribly near the trees.

"You want to rise a little," he bawled. "We'll be caught in the tree tops next thing you know."

Dave threw out a couple of sandbags, but it seemed to make little difference.

Klondike Kate and the Bradys Take a Plunge.

"We are in trouble, O. K. B.!" said Klondike Kate, calmly.

"We still have to take our chances. That's all."

She had scarcely spoken when the balloon went crashing through the top of a tall hemlock. The car was tilted over to one side. This happened to be "Help! Save me!" the gold queen screamed. Young King Brady made a grab for her, she clutched him like a drowning person, and in an instant both went whirling down into the darkness and the balloon shot up.

THE ONCE OVER

By H. L. PHILLIPS

YES, THERE IS A SANTA CLAUS.

The most popular man in America today is Dr. William J. O'Shea, superintendent of schools in New York City. The doctor has been a favorite for miles in some games and greatly reduced it in others. Questionnaires given school children today would bring the following:

Q. What is the highest mountain in North America?

A. Dr. O'Shea.

Q. Name the largest State in the Union?

A. Dr. O'Shea.

Q. Who discovered America?

A. Dr. O'Shea.

As far as the school children are concerned, the superintendent is Santa Claus. Jack the Giant Killer, the Fairy Prince, King Arthur, Uncle Piggy-Wiggy, the Queen of Sheba, and the like. He is their choice for President of the United States, heavyweight champion of the world and winner of all Mister America contests.

No home work? There's a man for you!

The kiddies are even singing the national anthem:

O'Shea can you see
By the dawn's early light?

The doctor's order eliminates all home work during the first three years in the public schools and allows only home work on most essential and attractive forms—for the upper grades and junior high pupils.

He thinks the problem: "If John has six apples and Charles has seven apples, how many apples will they have together?" is nothing the child should take home to interfere with the radio program, and that no little boy or girl should be kept from a Fairbanks moving picture by an evening at home with such a dull subject as the number of

AVOID UGLY PIMPLES

A pimply face will not embarrass you much longer if you get a package of Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. The skin should begin to clear after you have taken the tablets a few nights.

Cleanse the blood, bowels and liver with Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets, the successful substitute for calomel; there's no sickness or pain after taking them.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets do that which calomel does, and just as effectively, but their action is gentle and safe instead of severe and irritating.

No one who takes Olive Tablets is ever troubled with a "cold" brown face, a bad breath, dull listless, "no good" feeling, constipation, torpid liver, bad disposition or pimply face.

Olive Tablets are a purely vegetable compound mixed with olive oil; known throughout the world.

Dr. Edwards spent years among patients afflicted with liver and bowel complaints and Olive Tablets are the immensely effective result. Take nightly for a week. See how much better you feel and look! 15c, 30c, 60c.

"Great heavens! Mme. Kate is lost!" groaned Frank.

Old King Brady groaned, too, for he never expected to see his partner alive again. Deeply blaming himself again for ever coming to town with which he forced himself to his fate. The balloon cleared the tree tops. It gave another lurch and went swooping downward.

Old King Brady lost his balance and went whirling out of the dangling car. He could judge it was about 20 feet he turned over twice and, like a cat, landed on his feet. It was an awful shock. It was wonder he was not killed. He crawled against a tree and clung to it out of breath. He looked up in time to see the balloon disappear in the darkness.

He was alone. The rain had now ceased and he realized the storm had passed itself.

Little Fox obeyed in silence. "You lead the way," said Old King Brady, and Little Fox started off among the trees, showing no desire to talk.

At last they struck the mouth of a narrow canyon. "This must be the Fire Feather Basin," thought Old King Brady.

Soon they came to a point where the two ledges could be seen. Shelter could be seen on each side, but no one appeared to be living there.

"Look, look, look!" cried Little Fox, darting back. "I am man-hashed out of the bushes rifle in hand. Before Old King Brady could speak, he leveled his rifle and let it go. The bullet went through the old detective's hat, and quicker than thought out came the old detective's revolver and he had single shot in his hand. He stood over the man with drawn revolver. "Who are you?" he demanded. "Speak up. I mean business." "I'm Forty Mile Mike, one of Capt. Dodo's band."

"Sit there and don't stir until I give you the word and answer my questions. Who are you?"

Another chapter in this gripping story of adventure in the Far North is in tomorrow's paper. Don't miss it! Old King Brady is having new experiences.

Women's League Board in Session

Voters Group Ready to Open Its Convention in Capital.

Directors were in session yesterday preliminary to the opening this morning of the annual meeting of the general council of the National League of Women Voters at the Washington Hotel. The newly organized Colorado State League was admitted as a member of the national league.

More than 100 delegates who had arrived yesterday for the meeting, which will last until noon Friday, were guests at a reception given in their honor at her home last night by Miss Belle Sherwin, president.

Sessions are to be devoted today to a discussion of suffrage, with particular reference to encouraging interest in its extension. Dr. Robert B. Denby, president of Bennington College, is to speak on an address. The future of the political parties will be discussed at dinner Thursday night.

BEHIND THE SCREENS

With NELSON B. BELL

Well, sir, you'd never guess!

After an absence of more than two years, Mae Murray is returning to the screen. She has signed to make three pictures for Tiffany-Stahl, an organization which has been briefly associated with the present.

Peculiarly enough, under the present plan, Miss Murray will make "Peacock Alley," "Broadway Rose" and "Fascination," three vehicles which have been produced for her by the same company during her previous engagement. This time, they will be made as all-talkies.

Having caught a fleeting glimpse of Miss Murray in a kaleidoscopic view of a swaggy Hollywood luncheon, I can assure you that she is a most vivacious and gay creature.

"Show People," I will risk charges of being hopelessly sentimental, such-and-such by hoping that the Murray voice will not have to be photographed through cheese cloth to soften time's inevitable erosions.

By an odd coincidence, a new adagio routine is brought to the Capital this week by two teams playing competitive stages in the same block on F street. At the Palace, the Stone-Vernon Four, consisting of three men and a girl, are surpassing what is done by the Three Demons, at the Fox, only by the scant margin that the extra man represents. The feats which they perform are all intents and purposes identical. With the exception of the Stone-Vernon Four, perhaps their feminine associate sits over the place with a trifle more abandon than their competitors a few doors away. I have witnessed a more expert performance in the art of red heads, and borne out in this observation. Harry Davis, the famous artist, who perceives the dan of the day of the flamboyantly pigmented.

Mr. Clive cites only Ethylene Clair, a newcomer to the screen with hair the color of fire, as evidence of the infallibility of his prophecy. She can do better than that, and without even going out of town. This week's stage revue at the Palace has two red heads as principal motive power—Maxine Hamilton and Sammy Cohen. Sammie's hair would seem plenty red, but not Miss Hamilton's reddish blonde.

If they have to be film stars, how about Clara Bow, Doris Dawson, Nancy Carroll, Mary Astor and the rest? The only trouble is, red photographs black—but that doesn't go for temperament.

Dorothy Mackall, it will be discovered at the Earle this week, is an actress. For the first time in all the times that Ethylene has been upon the screen since the chorister girl, who never gives the impression of any marked beauty beyond that of being a dancer of the shallowest sort, strikes me as being endowed with a talent that has been lamentably subordinated to the mere flippancies. A possible exception might be made of her work "Mighty Like a Rose," but I can't call no other.

Whether the credit belongs to the late Donn Byrne for having written character into the part of Anna Bergen, who, when she first came on the screen, was only now coming to life, I could not for the life of me attempt to say, but Anna Bergen does possess character, she does enlist sympathy and she does disclose a considerable mastery of pathos that had more than a little to do with her success.

Edwin Carewe's production of "Mighty Like a Rose," but I can't call no other.

successfully exercised in a drama of a big city. Just to prove that I didn't know what I was talking about, he has now done that very thing in "Speakeasy," which is the howl of the mob at Madison Square Garden and the thud of the bangtails at Belmont Park, not to mention the ribaldry of New York's wide open places, which have been caught by Movietone without any appreciable loss of the tensity of the dialogue. I would like to deem it a fake, but I do not believe it is.

And speaking of "Speakeasy," I repeat altogether too much confidence in an untrustworthy memory in writing in an untrustworthy memory. The young man who plays the role of the reporter with a yen for Bacardi is impersonated by Stuart Erwin, one of the "inds" of the last theatrical season, and not by James Guilloyle. The only consoling thought is that I discovered the error myself.

Those robins that built their nest in my umbrella tree are just plain dumb.

The old man never brings home any chow for his wife, and presumably keeps her from starving to within an inch of her life.

These four little blue-bellied eggs exposed to cold, driving rains for fifteen or twenty minutes at a time, I was never a robin, but I'll bet that's never way to raise a family of them!

There may have been a time, as Miss Los chronicles with such picaresque vivacity, when gentlemen preferred them tow-headed, but at the moment the trend seems to be entirely in the direction of red heads, and borne out in this observation. Harry Davis, the famous artist, who perceives the dan of the day of the flamboyantly pigmented.

Mr. Clive cites only Ethylene Clair, a newcomer to the screen with hair the color of fire, as evidence of the infallibility of his prophecy. She can do better than that, and without even going out of town. This week's stage revue at the Palace has two red heads as principal motive power—Maxine Hamilton and Sammy Cohen. Sammie's hair would seem plenty red, but not Miss Hamilton's reddish blonde.

If they have to be film stars, how about Clara Bow, Doris Dawson, Nancy Carroll, Mary Astor and the rest? The only trouble is, red photographs black—but that doesn't go for temperament.

Dorothy Mackall, it will be discovered at the Earle this week, is an actress. For the first time in all the times that Ethylene has been upon the screen since the chorister girl, who never gives the impression of any marked beauty beyond that of being a dancer of the shallowest sort, strikes me as being endowed with a talent that has been lamentably subordinated to the mere flippancies. A possible exception might be made of her work "Mighty Like a Rose," but I can't call no other.

Sousa Will Hear Bands Play March

His "Flower of Sevilla" Will Be Rendered at "Despedida" for Army Musicians Going May 4 to Spanish Exposition.

The second party of "Despedida," which is to be given by the Army Band prior to its leaving for Spain by the Washington Board of Trade and the Washington Chamber of Commerce, is evidently to be a real affair. The trade organizations have procured the use of the new McKinley High School Auditorium, which seats 2,000 people, where the accompaniment is said to be among the best in the city. One hour of the program will be broadcast by the Columbia network from 8:30 to 9:30 o'clock Saturday, heard locally through WMAL.

Capt. Branson will have his Marine Band there as will Lieut. Bentler the Navy Band, and John Philip Sousa is coming over to Washington to hear the Army Band give the first rendition of the march which he has composed for the band. It is called "The Flower of Sevilla" and is dedicated to the Ibero-American Exposition.

The band will leave on May 4 on the Leviathan, going to Paris, Madrid and Seville, where they will play 60 concerts and their return will start at Basconia, where another exposition will be in progress. Besides selections by the three bands of 250 persons, Hazel Arth, the contralto, at the "Despedida" will sing some new Latin-American songs which she has added to her repertoire. The Thernikoff-Gardner canaries will also be features of the program.

The Army Band will return to Washington on June 26 and on the next day a homecoming concert will be given on the Esplanade of the Pan-American Union, where the band will have an opportunity of showing off the selections which won the greatest applause on the European tour.

Franklin P. Adams, counsulor of the Pan-American Union, accompanied by Mrs. Adams, will leave soon for Spain, where he will attend the exposition and hear the Army Bands play there. It was, in fact, Mr. Adams' idea that the band make the trip.

Recently Morgan L. Eastman, manager of WENR, Chicago, attempted to try out the musical knowledge of radio listeners by means of a contest. Each musician in the band was asked to play a note on his instrument before the microphone. This was followed by combinations of two instruments, each playing the same note. The fans were then asked to guess the name of the single instruments and the names of the instruments "in tandem."

"We found that a majority of the listeners could name the instruments when they were played singly," said Mr. Eastman, "but when we reproduced them in pairs it was a bit of a puzzle. They grace afternoon frocks, actually make evening gowns, appear on coats and have even invaded the sports mode."

In the sketch we show how they will look on the beach this summer. At the left the tennis dress appears in a version which will appeal to the sunburn enthusiast. It is, of course, sleeveless, and its low back duplicates a

Best Diction Award to Be Made Today

Name Will Be Broadcast at Academy Exercises. Red Cross Speakers 1:45 Include Archbishop Curley—Farm Bill 10:30.

The first award to be made for good diction on the radio will be presented shortly after noon today by Hamlin Garland representing the American Academy of Arts and Letters, founders of the award. It will be presented at the same time as the academy's awards for distinction in fine arts and for good diction. The award, the first ever given in the opinion of a committee of members of the academy, deserves highest commendation for his diction on the air during the past year will be awarded the medal.

The identity of the announcer will remain a secret until the award is made. Medals of gold and was designed by John Flanagan, a member of the National Institute of Arts and Letters and a former pupil of Augustus Saint-Gaudens.

The ceremonies will be broadcast by both networks of the National Broadcasting Co. and by the Columbia Broadcasting System. WRC and WMAL are included in the hook-up.

Cass Gilbert, noted architect and chairman of the meeting, will open the proceedings, after which Dr. Robert Underwood Johnson, secretary of the academy, will announce the election of new members and corresponding members. After Dr. Johnson's talk will come the award by Dean Wilber L. Cross of a gold medal for distinction in arts and letters and a response by the recipient. Dr. Henry van Dyke will then award a silver medal for good diction on the stage. After a response by the recipient of this medal, will come the award by Hamlin Garland, acting in place of Dr. Nicholas Wherry Butler, who is ill, of the radio diction medal.

Talks after a national gathering of the American Red Cross in the Willard Hotel will be broadcast by the station WRC. Speakers will include Archbishop Michael Curley, of Baltimore; William H. Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, and Frank A. Arnold, director of development for the National Broadcasting Co.

The provisions and purposes of the Federal Farm Board Act, better known as the Farm Relief Bill, will be explained in a special program over a coast-to-coast network of the National Broadcasting Company at 10:30 o'clock tonight. Representatives Fred H. Purnell, of Indiana, Republican, and James E. Aswell, of Louisiana, Democrat, will be the speakers. Both are members of the House committee on agriculture.

"It is my desire and also that of Mr. Aswell," said Representative Purnell, "that the two talks be informative. We want to give the radio audience a picture of the farm situation today and tell about some of the problems. After the two plans, the listeners about the bill will be pending, we will be giving in detail a description of the more important phases of the measure."

The life of Franz Liszt will be musically interpreted during the Ever-ready Hour at 9 o'clock. The coast-to-coast network of the broadcasting co-operative will be joined with WEPF for a musical dramatization of the career of the little Hungarian boy who later was to become one of the greatest of pianists and one of the world's finest composers.

A feature of the broadcast will be the life of Liszt, compositions by the well-known pianist. Liszt's dynamic life will be traced from his boyhood in the remote village of Raiding, a small hamlet far from the line of travel on the great Hungarian plain. There the only strangers he saw were the gypsies whose music was to have so profound an influence upon his genius. Liszt early displayed such prodigious genius at the piano that he went in triumph through European capitals at an age before the average musical student is out of school.

After the broadcast, Mme. Ney's rendition of some of his compositions will be supplemented by an orchestra of symphonic proportions under the direction of Nathaniel Shilkret.

Just to show you again how charming very simple and wearable garments are in the present-day mode, I have sketched a sports coat for you today.

INTERPRETS the MODE

"Ali Baba," sports coat of blue and white woolen mixtures. Collar and trimming in soft blue leather, buttons of steel. (Courtesy of Joseph Paquin, Paris).

Another and much more intricate expression of this motif is carried out by applying pieces of small pieces of fabric, rectangular or hexagonal, to a sheerer fabric of the same color, with an eighth of an inch or so of space all around each "brick."

This composite fabric is then made up in a variety of ways (most often for pocketettes), and gives an effect which must be seen to truly realize its loveliness.

One enchanting dress of chartreuse green used these six-sided "brick" appliques on the bodice and also had one row of them around the waist. Two of these latter were left open at the top, thereby forming two cunning pockets!

"Hand painted border" exclaims the designatrix. "Pouf, a mere 15,000 francs! And perhaps in the garment there may be four yards of material, which cost $4 a yard—and nothing more save the painting."

Another skirt that for the simple sending of a stamped, self-addressed envelope to the Date Department of The Washington Post you can get a leaflet this week, tells you how to paint on materials! How to batik, too. Can anything keep you from sending it?

And now we have fox trimming in two shades, the one above the other. Pearl gray and smoke gray, for instance, brown and beige, white and black—either on the collar or the middle of the back, or diagonally on the sleeves.

Just to show you again how charming very simple and wearable garments are in the present-day mode, I have sketched a sports coat for you today.

Au Revoir!

Romney puts a bow behind the chic of this summer ensemble!

As frivolous as a French afternoon frock . . . that's without the jacket . . . and with the costume becomes quite sedate and shows only a trim little plaid purple shirt . . . an orchid blouse with a well-ordered ruffle . . . and a purple tailored coat . . . all of georgette. If you're traveling or vacationing here's one ensemble to pack that will take the place of many.

THE NUT, 21 TO 1, WINS GRAY FEATURE IN GALLOP

Sande's Horse Favorite, Is Also Ran

Long Shot Takes Long Lead as Hermitage Fails Backers.

Pellegrino, 8-1, Wins Seventh Number in Blanket Finish.

By CHARLES A. WATSON
(Staff Correspondent of The Post)

HAVRE DE GRACE, April 22.—The Nut, racing under the colors of the West Stable, and recently acquired by Sane, won the initial race of the 1929 racing season at the "Gray" today and was a galloping winner for his new owner in the Beverwick purse, featured on account of the Preskeens' eligible taking part.

The Nut, the 3-year-old son of Mr. Hatter this afternoon also scored the first victory of the year for Jockey Johnny Malbin, his rider. Joe Notter set the recently acquired Whitney colt down in excellent condition and once he assumed command of the pace the result was a foregone conclusion, with the Nut going away by four lengths over H. Teller Archibald's fleet Folkling. Walter M. Jefford's Constitution suffered the first defeat of his career when he ran third in the race to head Earl Sane and Hermitage to the wire by a full length.

Recreation Best of Three Starters in Hampton Roads Purse.

Only three horses went to the post for the Hampton Roads Purse, programmed as the fifth race, and Recreation, running in the silks of Jefferson Livingston and capably ridden by Jockey George Fields, was the winner by a length over Frank Grace's War Hawk with the Seagren Stable's Edison far behind in the running.

The winner went to the front soon after the break and easily disposed of War Hawk when the final drive came for the finish. The winner paid 1 to 2.

Gullord Defeats Juveniles in First Race of Program.

The opening number for maiden 2-year-old colts and geldings, over the 1½ furlongs distance, provided a winner in E. E. Griffith's Griffon, while George D. Widener's Fairchild to the finish by four lengths. Partisan was away third.

The winner, which was ridden by Jockey A. Robertson, was a hot tip last Friday, but was not able to win the horse race. Today was another day however, and the Griffith colt galloped away from the field of eight other starters. Partisan ran second all the way to the head of the stretch and then took the lead but tired badly when the final test came and finished far behind the purse winner.

Fair Vena Surprises in Second, With Sweet Genevieve Trailing.

Another maiden entry marked the running of the second race, the Maryland Dupont Fox-Catcher Farm's Fairlvens graduated as she led home a band of eight starters over the 5½ furlongs distance. Jockey H. Erickson rode the winner who was far the best of the entries that went postward. Sweet Genevieve, in second with Fenlight, the favorite, bringing up third place on the muddy track.

The start was perfect, after a short delay and E. J. Holland's For Luck was the fastest away from the gate. Fairlvens had the slightest of a lead at the start until the head of the stretch was reached where Erickson had the advantage.

The Diver Is Destroyed; Hypnotism Easy Winner.

The long delays, which have attended all the starts here, also preceded the running of the third affair of 6 furlongs. The chief offender in this race was Mooneyne Claire, which three times had to get out just before the horses got under way.

C. Graffagnini's Hypnotism displayed his powers in the heavy going and was an easy winner by four lengths over P. H. Randolph's Wildale, which turned in key to a field choice, to the finish.

Twelve horses faced the webbing and Tomassine was fleetest away when the word was given to go. Hypnotism soon overtook the leader after going the first 100 yards and opened up a long lead, which the horses had to end under a clever ride by Jockey A. Robertson. Wildale, always closest in pursuit, finished courageously. The Diver broke his leg during the running of the race and was destroyed.

Opening Polo Contest Postponed to Saturday

The opening game of the 1929 Army polo season, which was scheduled to take place this afternoon at 3 o'clock, was postponed until Saturday afternoon. The recent heavy rains have placed the field in such a condition that play will be impossible until that it was stated.

Takoma Tigers to Hold Meeting and Practice

The Takoma Tigers have a "double-header" in store for Saturday, April 27, tomorrow. The team will practice at 5 o'clock on the Silver Spring diamond, while a meeting will be held at 7:30 o'clock at Simpson's Grocery Store in Takoma Park.

The Tigers meet a formidable foe Sunday in the Washington Red Sox who will be the team to open the home season of the Suburbanites. The Silver Spring diamond will be the scene of action.

Dallas Training Hard For Clayton Mat Match

Pete Dallas is training at the Y. M. C. A. in order that he will be in top condition for his wrestling match with Tom Clayton at the Strand Theatre, next Friday. They are to wrestle in a finish match with two out of three falls to decide.

The veteran Czech matman realizes that Clayton, who claims the Maine middleweight championship, is a "tough hombre" on the mat and wishes to be ready for his younger opponent.

What Today Means to YouAPRIL 23
By MARY BLAKE.

TAURUS. April 23 is your birthday, the best hours for you today are from 9:30 a.m. to 11 a.m., from 1 p.m. to 2:15 p.m. and from 3:30 p.m. to 7 p.m. The danger periods are from 7:30 a.m. to 8:50 a.m. and from 9:05 p.m. to 10:25 p.m.

The astrological signs for today are very auspicious for those who are contented with things as they are; for them there are many surprises in store. It is not a time to force results.

Examples and suggestions will do more for the child bound today than strict commands in the way of discipline or training. It will readily respond to affection.

You are suffering from an inferiority complex; you are both faultless and just a little self-satisfied. It has been said that "a king can make a nobleman, but it takes Jehovah to make a gentleman." Nature has endowed you with refined and cultured tastes. It has given you a mind capable of comprehension, and a driving

GOVERNMENT BONDS SHOW FIRMEST TONE

Many Other Issues Slip Downward Despite Easing of Money Market.

FEW CARRIERS MOVE UP

New York, April 22 (A.P.)—As the bulls gained control of the stock market, trading in the popular semiprivate convertibles and securities carrying stock purchase warrants quickened today and gave the bond market an air of activity. The general list of air issues, however, slipped downward a little in spite of further credit easings, which barely held the gains scored last week.

The firmest section of the market was the United States Government list. Responding to easing of time money rates, the Library and Treasuries made gains, ranging from 1/16 to 1/8 point, in continuation of the upward price movement that began two weeks ago. Most of the issues are now a point or more above the low levels reached late in March.

European government bonds steadied up after some slight last week-end on a fall in a half in the reparations conference. The French Republic 7½s and 7s, the British 5½s and Belgian 6s were in demand at fractionally higher prices by investors seeking the higher yields available in foreign issues.

Convertible Bonded Irregulars.

The heaviest turnover was in Alleghany Corporation 5s, International Telephone 4½s, both of which sold off fractionally, and Dodge Bros. 6s. The latter crossed 105 for the first time this year. A large block of 100 was sold to be redeemed soon by Chrysler Corporation.

Gains of more than 3 points were made by Anaconda Copper 7s and Public Service of New Jersey 4½s.

Rails, after their recent improvement, had a brief refunding and improvement; and the Erie refunding and fractions to their recent gains.

On a scale of five bonds, Atchison adjustment 4s jumped 4½ points, to 85. St. Paul adjustment 6s, a recent trading favorite, sold off.

The miscellaneous industrial coupon securities attracted little attention and price changes generally were narrow.

New German Proposals Held Unlikely—Schacht Again Confers With Experts.

PLENARY SESSION TODAY

Paris, April 22 (A.P.)—The eleventh week of work by the second Dawes committee toward settlement of the thorny German reparations problem began today in an atmosphere of despondency.

Dr. Schacht and his colleagues arrived in Paris this afternoon after a flying visit to Berlin but were understood to have brought back with them nothing that could dissipate the clouds which have been hanging over the work of the experts since the Germans made known their offer.

The question that seemed to remain for settlement was how the experts should announce the end of their labors.

It was still regarded as possible, in some quarters, that the Germans might make new proposals, but there has been no confirmation of such intention, and there is great reluctance to whether they would offer anything that would justify continuation of the conference.

Schacht Confers With Young.

On his return from Berlin today, Dr. Schacht conferred with Owen D. Young, chairman of the second Dawes committee, and with Emil Moraeus, principal French delegate.

Nothing transpired from these interviews and there is no reason to suppose that he changed the situation sufficiently to warrant the continuance of the committee's work.

The majority of the experts are now thinking clearly about how they are going to conclude their work. Under the terms of reference of the committee they were expected to discover a new way of looking at the reparations problem. Consideration of the point of view they have failed. But much of the work they have done may eventually serve for an ultimate solution, and this fact may have a certain influence on the reports to their governments.

Can Go No Further, Says Premier.

Premier Poincaré of France, speaking to the General Council of the Meuse Department today, made clear that France was unable to go further than it had already done in the way of conciliation.

The premier recalled that he had not only made clear the policy of the French government in speeches last fall but had also communicated it through diplomatic channels to the German government.

Proceedings at the plenary session tomorrow probably will be chiefly formal. The Germans may possibly demand continuation of the conference; and if they do, Mr. Young will probably ask if they have any new proposals to make. If nothing is forthcoming, the committee will be asked to appoint a sub-committee to draw up a report to the governments represented.

Dawes, About to Sail, Feted by Dominicans

Santo Domingo, Dominican Republic, April 23 (A.P.)—His mission completed, Gen. Charles G. Dawes and his advisory mission will sail for the United States tomorrow on board the steamship San Lorenzo. During the day, Gen. Dawes planned to deliver to President Vasquez the recommendations prepared by the commission for the conduct of the Dominican government's financial affairs.

A reception for Gen. Dawes and members of the mission was held at the presidential residence this afternoon. High officials, diplomats, consuls and prominent citizens were invited.

Services in Utah For William Spry

Land Office Commissioner's Body to Be Taken West for Burial.

The body of William Spry, commissioner of the United States Land Office and former Governor of Utah, who died Sunday at his residence, 2844 Wisconsin avenue northwest, will be taken to Salt Lake City today, where funeral services will be held. Mr. Spry died following a stroke of paralysis. He had been in failing health since 1927. He was 65 years old.

He was appointed to the land office post by the late President Harding in 1921. At the time of his appointment he was a resident of Salt Lake City. He was Governor of Utah for two successive terms, from 1920 to 1927. He was a candidate for the United States Senate in 1927, but was defeated.

He was born in London, England, and came to the country as a boy. He is survived by his wife, formerly Miss Mary Alice Wooten of Grantsville, Utah; two daughters, Mrs. Alice Wooley, of Los Angeles, and Mrs. Lita Wooten, of Washington; and son, Lieut. James W. Spry, Army Air Corps, San Antonio, Tex.

FUNERAL OF G. W. LINKINS.

Services for Capital Real Estate Dealer, to Be Held This Afternoon.

Funeral services for George W. Linkins, 83 years old, widely known real estate dealer of Washington, who died Sunday night, will be held at 2 o'clock this afternoon from the residence 3615 Newark street northwest. Burial will be in Rockwood cemetery.

Mr. Linkins had been actively engaged in the real estate business here since 1886. He was vice president of the Home Building Association, a member of the board of directors of the Washington Title Insurance Co., and a director of the First National Bank. He is survived by four sons, George R., Charles R., William H. and Luther W. Linkins; two daughters, Esther and Flora M. Linkins, and one sister, Miss Hetty Linkins.

CRAIG FUNERAL TODAY.

Military Honors to be accorded Lieutenant Colonel at Arlington.

Lieut. Col. Daniel F. Craig, field artillery, who died April 19, at Providence, R. I., will be buried this afternoon at 2 o'clock with military honors at Arlington National Cemetery. Short services will precede the burial in the chapel at Fort Myer.

The following will act as honorary pallbearers: Maj. Gen. Fred T. Austin, Brig. Gen. E. E. Booth, Col. Frank Watson, Col. H. H. Morris, Col. Marvin C. Buckner, Lt. Col. D. C. Gunson, Col. Z. E. Wilson, and Maj. Gen. F. Collins.

Automobiles from the hands of original owners will be sold at auction, but during many times the desire for a different or later model, dealers use the classified columns of the Post to find buyers. Here are the very car you are looking for to be found cheap.
